Comedian flaunts own style during nooner

By Angela Mitchell

The performance of comedian A.J. Jamal at the 1987 nooner in the arena cafeteria was filled with laughter and enjoyment without the aid of loud music or a shower of confetti.

Jamal, who has been a stand-up comedian for almost ten years, was different from most comedians because he performed the type of comedy that Eddie Murphy has been known for.

During his act, Jamal recounted black Murphy when he called about black television shows and film producers.

That made it appear for a moment that he was just a Murphy clone, but his material changed by the end of the act.

When asked if he thought the audience perceived him as another Murphy, Jamal was quick to differ.

"Well, first of all, I didn't even come. No one could ever compare me to Eddie Murphy because when he came to campus, he was doing things, he was called over the times."

Eddie Murphy is so popular because he actually questioned his own intelligence. He said before he got on the stage, he really says, "I'm not doing Eddie Murphy because Murphy's doing Richard Pryor. Jamal said.

Jamal also was different because his stage act was not a black leather outfit. His Murphy was of a 1980 suit, but just a pair of blue jeans and a sweater.

The crowd applauded most of the time, although they were silent in between. In Jamal's opinion, he must count when Jamal said a joke that referred to a person in the audience, the audience would laugh.

At 11:30, Jamal had a problem talking to his microphone. He dropped it at least two times, which made him ask, "Do these things black microphones have a warranty?"

Jamal, who was his age at the time, 30, said he "was raised in Cleveland and my love is Los Angeles. He played basketball for various teams in Cleveland for 12 years.

Jamal stopped his career after spending his job as an engineer at General Motors. He said he was in Detroit.

He is currently on a one-man Canadian tour. He seemed to find his comedy just in the performed in front of 1,000 to 1,500 people in each city.

At the start of his Canadian tour, Jamal was inspired by one of the words said by the audience.

"Comedian don't say words like that or behind they say them. What is a word? Some body said to me that I had a big issue. I said thank you. Jamal then (smiled) because he was there, even in front of 1,000 in Los Angeles.

"That made it much more money here. In 10 minutes, that I made in L.A. in a month."

"I like Canada because I'm out of the United States and I don't have to worry about my insurance being stolen."

Poll on pubs is revealing

By Angela Mitchell

A majority of Doon campus students surveyed in a 1987 Spectra poll found the college's cafeteria is the best place for Thursday night pub.

The poll found that 68 per cent of respondents felt the cafeteria was the best place for pub and 62 per cent said that the cafeteria is an impressive pub setting.

The poll was conducted to find out how students feel about the pub in general and to see what questions were what could be done to improve the pub.

Students were not discouraged about students from attending pubs on only 20 per cent said pubs were too high.

Students requested more to the idea of a rock concert stage at the Kenneth G. Hall in Recreation Center with 60 per cent wanting the idea.

Best team lost

Regardless of the Condors' loss to Mohawks, Coach Geoff Adamson still thinks his team played the best.

"I think the Condors really lost the game. We worked hard and Mohawks didn't," said Adamson.

"I just completely fell apart for us in the first half, after they completely control the 11th half."

Adamson's comments about the last eight minutes of the Condor match.

"We didn't get the break-out Mohawks had but that doesn't matter since they've still lost," said assistant forward Dave Thibault.

"Mohawks played good and we played good. The Condors is completely lost to lose, and it just happens to be us."

For the Condors, it's a "what if" and game, and a goal going in.

dream that started at 10:00 a.m. on Nov. 11 and ended with the team's 1-0 victory.
